

ALEXANDRIA, VA.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 19.

The suggestive movement of the Western democrats, as indicated by that of those in Indiana and Ohio, is having its effect upon their friends in the North, and there are already rumors of consultations of the party in New Jersey, Connecticut and New York. A firm and unalterably expressed determination to maintain their rights at all hazards would, in our opinion, put an effectual stop to all further belligerent talk upon the part of such "invincible in peace and invisible in war' chieftains grossment. as Messrs. Morton and Chandler. There is no doubt that the weak and submissive policy of the democratic party in the North has induced the radicals to make their present attempt to 1850. usurp the possession of the government. For years past it has known that its friends in the South have been subjected to indignities, impositions and crucities unheard of before in a country supposed to be a republic, and though the middle of it like any common man to avoid appealed to time and again by every influence that would tend to obtain succor and relief, it has apparently been afraid even to endeavor to clerk in Mr. Hunter's office, and who is at respond. Indeed its leaders have labored under present a court favorite. such dread of radical wrath, and of its potency in reviving the animosities of the late war. which might effect their popularity, that, with his opinion upon the question of the taxation but very few honorable exceptions, they have not even dared to express their sympathy for the suffering South; and the action of its money- held as exempt from semi-annual taxation on ed men has been such as to induce the belief capital. that they would not object to the massacre of the entire white population of the South by repetitions of the Cainhoy affair, provided bonds and stocks were not affected. By its course it has received, if it has not merited, the contempt of its opponents, and in a conversation with Senator Morton, yesterday, upon the probability of forcible resistance to the fraud he is so busily engaged in furthering, he expressed that contempt by laughing, in his blustering way, at the very idea of the democrats taking up arms. We sincerely hope and trust that this policy, which has had such disastrous effects in the past, will now be changed, and, if it be, experience and history both teach us that beneficial results will follow.

It is reported that the stiffening lately manifested by the Northern democracy is accompanied by a corresponding weakening on the part of the radicals. That may be so, and doubtless is, with regard to the radical party, but that no such change has taken place in the "representative of that party," as the President of the country announces himself to be, is made apparent by the constant arrivals of troops in Washington, ordered there by him to strengthen the weak kneed radicals and to bull doze the democratic House of Representatives. Another company of soldiers arrived there yesterday, three are known to be on their wayhow many more are unknown-and, no matter what their feelings and opinions may be, that they will fight for him in his attempt to subvert the will of the people all history shows.

The radicals are not only determined to have the presidency, but both houses of Congress also. To accomplish this purpose the plan they have adopted is for the members of their party in the next House of Representatives to and saw the doctor warming an instrument at stay away from it, and for the Senate to refuse to recognize the democratic members as a constitutional body, upon the asserted ground that some of its members from the Southern States were elected by intimidation, and to have them ejected from the Capitol by the Louisians and South Carolina process.

Mr. Hayes is to be a conservative president, and eschew the influence of the more ultra members of his party-so some of his friends say-and yet he had to have a private interview with Senator Morton, when the latter was on his way to Indiana to organize and arm the radical clubs of that State. Even if he wanted to cut loose from those who helped him most, which we doubt, it would be impossible for him to do so.

When Gen. Grant accepted the presidency, he asked what he was to have after the expiration of his term of office. His friends are anxious for him to have something, but are divided in opinion as to whether he shall be Casar, President of the Senate, Secretary of War, or have a field-marshalship created for him.

Quite a flutter has been created in Norfolk by a change in some of the officers of the custom house, for which nobody is willing to be responsible. Among the new appointees is a man who, though on the pay rolls of the treasury department for four years, has never been

The order of a radical Congress for copies of the telegrams sent by the Western Union Telegraph Company was a good enough Morgan for Mr. Orton, the president of that company, but a similar order from a democratic Congress | New Year's Day, when little attentions during is a white horse of another color.

Gen. Barlow and Mr. W. E. Chandler, who were sent down to Fiorida to assist in securing the vote of that State for Hayes, have written letters, in which they both virtually acknowledge that the State went for Tilden.

Letter from Richmond.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 18, 1876.—The time of the Senate, to-day, was principally occupied in discussing a recess from the 28th to the 3d of January, which was finally agreed to.

A bill to secure the wages of railroad employees, was referred. In the House of Delogates bills were reported to amend the act prescribing the duties, powers, liabilities and compensation of certain county officers; providing for the collection of taxes; a bill in relation to exempting school trustees, ministers of the gospel, and others from road duty; to authorize the Cincinnati and St. Louis Railroad Company to record mortgages and deeds of trust under certain conditions; and to amend the code in regard to admission to the public free schools.

A resolution was introduced in regard to the failure of the Winchester and Strasburg Railroad to comply with its contracts.

Any number of bills and resolutions "to amend the code" were introduced. Bills were passed authorizing the Board of Supervisors of Clarke county to issue new bonds in the sum of $100,000, in lieu of those heretofore issued by the said board to the capital stock of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad Company; to provide for erecting, rebuild ing and repairing bridges in Fairfax county; to amend section 3 of an act to incorporate the Clarke County Co-operative Mercantile Com-

MALPRACTICE CASE IN BALTIMORE,-The Baltimore Gazette of this morning, in reference to the arrest of Dr. T. C. Maddox for alleged malpractice, says :

The witnesses appeared yesterday morning before State's Attorney Knott. Examination failed to produce any fresh evidence criminating the physician indicted by the grand jury. The alleged victim states that she was under the impression she had been enciente at one time, but subsequently found she was mistaken, and had only been suffering from an irregular condition of her system and a severe cold, for which she was treated by the doctor in question.

One of the witnesses testified that she visited the doctor's office in company with the girl the stove in the outer room while his patient was in the consultation room. The girl herself testified that while in conversation with the doctor he was engaged in wiping some instruments, the nature of which she did not know; there was no fire in the consultation room, and he passed out into the ante-room and returned once or twice during the consultation. The other witnesses testified only as to what the girl had told them as to her condition. The mother testified that her daughter walked to the doctor's office on the day in question, and walked home, only going to bed the following day and remaining there for two or three days; she knew she was suffering from a severe cold, and had complained of pains in all parts of the Investigation shows that the matter was brought before the grand jury by three prominent physicians who were engaged in the laudable work of endeavoring to put a stop to malpractice, and who thought the case a suspicious one. The indictment, it is stated, was based purely upon a hypothesis which from all accounts the evidence will fail to sustain,

Parisian Servants. - A letter from Paris, says a growing nuisance of French life is the intolerable air of superiority that its servants begin to assume before their masters. The scene takes place in a restaurant where a gentleman is at breakfast. The waiter is free and easy, not to say rude, the gentleman extremely polite and patient. At length the waiter having spilled a boatful of sauce on the gentleman's trousers the latter ventures to utter a mild pro test, to which the waiter rejoins with a storm of invectives. "Do not be too proud, waiter," observes the victim mildly. "You can never tell what the future may have in store for you.

Some day you, too, may be a customer.' About this time, indeed, waiters begin to be civil to customers, and servants occasionally remember that their masters' rooms want sweeting out, for are we not within two weeks of the preceding twelve months are paid for in hard cash? Old-fashioned folk love to attribute the habitual insolence of servants to the demoralizing effect of republican institutions, but it was quite as noticeable in the latter years of the Empire. Similiar indications of a social revolution were noticed by writers in the silver age of Roman literature and manners, from which coincidence anybody is at liberty to draw such inferences as to him may seem good.

Mr. Sargeant called the Senatorial investigating committee together yesterday. Reporters and the public were denied admission, the sergeant-at-arms saying he had orders to admit no one. Cards to the chairman were returned with the statement that the sessions obedient servant, would be secret. The day was consumed in examining the republican members of the canvassing board. Judge Cocke is summoned to appear before the committee. The House committee had before it eighteen negroes whose names were on the poll list at Chamberlain's refusal to yield possession wil Richardson precinct, in Leon county, as hav- be followed by the appointment of all the offiing voted there who swore that they did not cers of the Hampton government, and the peovote there, and were not at the presenct all day. ple will be called upon to give them exclusive There were votes in the ballot bex to accord support. Hampton has already taken steps to with these names. The committee will summon fill the appointive offices in the different other witnesses to morrow. The introduction of the colored witnesses to-day, and their testimony, created quite a sensation.

The Supreme Court continued its session for the hearing of argument in the mandamus case. The argument will be concluded to-day, general opinion is that the crisis will come durand the decision announced probably to morrow.

The Louisiana investigation continues to develop republican frauds and intimidation. Both committees are going deeply into the case, and it is not expected that they will get through uztil late in January.

E. W. Barnes, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who had been subprenaed | Christmas. to produce dispatches sent and received by Messrs, Kellogg, Packard, Dibble, Warmoth, Carter and Gen. Augur, from and after the 15th of August, 1876, was called before the Congressional committee. In answer to questions Mr. Barnes stated that he had not brought any messages with him and that he had been instructed by General Superintendent Van Horne not to deliver nor produce any messages, consequently he must, under his instructions, refuse to deliver the telegrams called for by the subpæss.

The committee after consultation adopted the following resolution, which the chairman was instructed to communicate to the House of Representatives by telegraph.

Resolved, That for the efficient prosecution of the inquiry ordered by the House this committee communicates to the House for its consideration the refusal of Edward Barnes to produce before the committee telegrams referred to in the subpress duces tecum served upon him Dec. 13, 1876, his refusal being in contempt of the House of Representives.

Gen. Hurlbut moved that the last clause. "his refusal being in contempt," be struck out, as the House itself was the judge of the contempt if there was any. The chair put the question on tien. Hurlbut's amendment and it was lost. The republicans voting for and the democrats against it, The resolution was then voted for and earried by a party vote. Among the witnesses examined yesterday was cx Gov. Wickliffe, who testified that he resides in the parish of West Felicianna; did nothing to prevent the organization of the republicans in the parish. Over one thousand negroes in the democratic clubs voted the democratic ticket. They were enthusiastic and acted voluntarity. The relations between the promised the colored people that if the democrats were successful in the contest, and did not carry out their promises, he would join the republicans in the next campaign with the negroes against the democrats. An effort was made to kill him and his partner, Mr. Kisher. They were shot at one night. The candidate for sheriff was killed a few nights before election. Some of the colored men did not want it known that they voted the democratic ticket. Thinks more negroes would have voted the democratic ticket if they had been left entirely free of improper influence. The negroes take more interest in schools than in any other question. Almost every man in the parish, colored and white, goes armed.

The Senate investigating committee met yes terday. Mr. Howe, the chairman, announced that only five members of each party to act as counsel and the members of the press would be admitted at the sessions of the committee. He also said the counsel for the democrats desired to submit a written statement of their objection, to the action of the returning board. He thought it would greatly facilitate the business of the committee. He wished the document to be brief, and to be submitted as early as possible. Judge Campbell desired to file a counter-statement, and was accorded that privilege. The chairman said it was desired to procure a tabulated statement of the votes as returned to the board. There were none of the democratic counsel present.

SOUTH CAROLINA. The Columbia correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, under date of last night, says : The Senate Judiciary Committee will meet to-morrow to consider Lieut. Gov. Simpson's demand for the presidency of the Senate. Pos sibly a report will be made to-morrow. The democratic Senators have decided to remain in the Senate under Gleaves, the present President, in case the committee report adversely to Simpson. This determination upsets the former plan, which was for Simpson to form with the democratic Senators a separate Senate. The reasons for the change are a desire to cooperate effectively with the movement of Gov. Hampton and the Wallace House to memorialize Congress, and the hope that by retaining their seats under Gleaves they will protect the threatened judiciary. Little doubt is now felt that Chamberlain will attempt the arrest of Hampton and others as soon as his bayonet bill passes, and it grows more certain hourly that the State constabulary, who are relied on to make the arrests. will meet a rough reception.

The first step by Gov. Hampton to assert his authority as against the conspirators was taken

U. S. A committee of three was appointed to draft a memorial to Congress in relation to the political complications in this State.

A communication was received from Dr. Ensor, superintendent of the lunatic asylum, stating that the 400 inmates are almost in a starving condition, all his resources, including private credit, being exhausted in support of the institution, with no hope of obtaining from the Chamberlain government the funds appropriated to sustain it. The troubles between the King of Denmark and his Parliament have reached a critical point. The radicals have a large majority in the Chamber, and in the financial bill their select committee has not only stricken out or largely reduced every item demanded by the Government, but incorporated in their report personal insults against some of the Ministers. The King is advised to dissolve the session, which would be the third time since the trou ble began, and the radicals urge resistance to the collection of taxes if necessary by force.

THE GARNETT APPOINTMENT .-- The Righmond Dispatch of to-day says :

"Dr. Mills was advised by the authorities at Washington that it was desirable for him to make a place in his office for R. P. W. Garnett, of Alexandria. President Grant wished to provide for Garnett because of an affection which had existed at West Point between him and Garnett's brother (Geo. Garnett, of the Confederate States army, who was killed early in the war in West Virginia,) and because Garnett stated that he was in great poverty. Dr. SAMUEL H. JANKEY. Mills declined to make the appointment on the | A. A. WARFIELD. ground that Carnett's habits were bad. The Department replied in substance that Garnett had reformed, and that his appointment would be insisted on. At this juncture Dr. Mills had prepared his resignation, and took counsel with his friends about forwarding it. Before any final action in that direction Col. Mosby, hearing of Garnett's appointment, hastened to the President and informed that high and mighty official that he had been imposed upon when made to believe that Garnett was a worthy man, &c., &c. His influence was such that President Grant relaxed his order, and Dr. Mills is left to manage his office as he likes, and Gen. Grant's affection for the late Gen. Garnett awaits another and better opportunity for showing it."

BULLDOZING EXTRAORDINARY IN WAR RENTON .-- On Saturday afternoon Virgil Blue came to town with a fifty cent load of wood drawn by a small harry-diek bull, about four hands high, harnessed within shalts. Leaving his bullship in front of Hilleary's store, he stepped in to make some purchases. In a moment after the bull resolved bimself into a returning board and started for home. The first obstacle in his path was a horse and buggy, under which he rushed, tossing both into the air and placing them completely hors du combat. He then made frantically across the street, and the cart wheel striking the tree box in front of the clerk's office, he went to grass. Disengaging the wheel from the tree box, he went down the Alexandria Turnpike at two-forty, with one of his hind legs hitched over the front of the eart. The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday decided that where a testator made a bequest to his wife of all his estate, real and personal, "to have and to hold during her life, and to do with as she sees proper before her death," the wife took a life estate in the property, with only such power as a life tenant can have, and that her conveyance of the real property possessed no greater interest.
